City studies change in architectural review

By Don Green

On a tie vote, the Upland City Council Monday night defeated proposed amendments to the municipal code to restrict the authority of the Architectural Commission and expand its membership from five to seven.

However, the proposals might come before the council again when all members are present. Councilman Bill Bottin was absent Monday.

City Attorney Don Maroney will advise the council Jan. 3 on a procedural question determining whether the defeated motion can be brought back for further consideration.

While he said Tuesday he has come to no conclusions yet, Maroney noted the council majority usually prevails one way or another.

Bottin has previously expressed interest in increasing the number of commissioners from five to seven.

The vote Monday night was taken against a backdrop of two controversial decisions by the commission in recent months.

On Aug. 17, the commission rejected elevations and site plans for the 20-acre, $6 million Mountaingreen Center at the northwest corner of Seventh Street and Mountain Avenue.

On Oct. 19, the commission voted down concept plans for a shop building and new city yard on Benson Avenue north of 13th Street.

The council overturned the commission on the city yard plans, which must meet tight construction guidelines under a $760,000 grant from the U.S. Economic Development Administration.

In addition to expanding the commission's membership, the code amendments would have limited its authority on site plan reviews.

If site plans were substantially altered during architectural review, the changes would have been reported back to whatever body — City Council, Planning Commission or administrative committee — as recommendations for specific revisions.

This amendment would have diluted the commission's authority to reject the very basic plans for projects.

Councilman Hal Bailin, referring to the commission's authority to reject site plans after council approval, said no agency should have a veto over elected officials.

Mayor Pro Tem John McCarthy, who voted with Bailin in favor of the code amendments, said, "I was getting very concerned with just three members of the Architectural Commission making very major decisions."

Bailin contended both the Mountaingreen Center and city yard were rejected on votes with just three members present after the concepts for each project had been previously approved by the commission.

Mayor George Gibson disputed Bailin's recollection of those commission votes. The mayor and Councilwoman Ina Petokas voted against the code amendments.

No formal vote was taken during the commission's schematic review of the Mountaingreen Center in April, but commissioners did point out problems they saw stemming from the design designs. The August vote was 3-1 against the center plans.

Later four of the commission's five members appeared before City Council to explain their objections to the Mountaingreen plans.

Revised plans for the center were eventually approved and the council upheld the commission's view on a 2-2 vote denying developer Harry Crowell's appeal.

The commission's vote in October against the city yard concept plans was 2-1.

Mrs. Petokas and Bailin suggested more commissioners might be able to attend the meeting if they were held at night instead of Wednesday mornings.

Gibson stressed the difficulty in finding qualified professional persons to sit on the commission.

"I think the result of enlarging it (the commission) may be to delete the quality of membership of the Architectural Commission. Most of these are professional people who give up time from their business to do this work," he said.

Renewed emphasis on goals

Women's conference: historic event

By Don Green

An Upland resident who attended the National Women's Conference last month in Houston said the gathering should give renewed emphasis to the campaign for the Equal Rights Amendment and other feminist goals.

Dana Patrick, an 18-year-old sophomore at Scripps College in Claremont, attended the conference Nov. 18-21 as an "official observer."

"For myself and a lot of women I talked to, it was very much a historical event," she said.

Patrick said the conference represented both a "starting point and a culmination of work."

"It's an isolated place in time where we all got together and made really strong resolutions and demands that we really meant."

Patrick said she became interested in the feminist movement in the last year and has since become this semester's coordinator of a women's center serving the Claremont Colleges.

The center, located at Pitzer College, offers a variety of services to women, including a library, referrals to women attorneys and doctors, and talks and presentations of concern to women.

She added that the center sponsors extensive activities each February in celebration of the birthday of Susan B. Anthony, the early proponent of women's rights.

The conference was first proposed in 1975 in connection with International Women's Year (IWY) proclaimed by the United Nations. Congress provided $5 million toward the conference, including funding for state and territorial conventions leading to the Houston meeting.

Patrick said she decided to attend the conference while listening to an IWY - benefit concert in Los Angeles. Through meeting a Connecticut delegate in Houston she became an "official observer."

The designation gained her admittance to plenary sessions, though not convention caucuses, she said.

About 14,000 persons, including nearly 2,000 delegates, attended the Houston conference, and more than 125,000 women participated in the delegate selection.

Patrick said high points of the conference included the final mile of a torch relay from Seneca Falls, N.Y., and adoption of policy recommendations substituted by minority delegates.

The 2,612-mile relay began in the small town where suffragettes held the first national women's conference in 1848.

Patrick said, "I feel it was a very good kind of symbolic statement that we came across the country. And it was a symbol of strength and a kind of continuum across the United States."

"It was just a very emotional moment with (former Congresswoman) Bella Abzug and Billie Jean King receiving the torch and the final mile marched to the conference center."

The delegates passed a wide-ranging, 25-point National Plan of Action calling for free choice on abortion, passage of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA), a national health insurance program with special provisions for women, expanded bilingual education for minority women, rape-prevention education, extension of Social Security benefits to housewives and state-supported shelters for wives who are battered by their husbands.

Cost estimates for these proposals and others have run into billions of dollars, but Patrick stressed the delegates do not expect everything to be enacted immediately.

"If you lump it all together at once and say 'this is what the women want,' it looks very big. But actually it's a program for half the population."

While admitting the conference recommendations face an uncertain fate before President Carter and the Congress, she said the Houston convention had almost "spiritual" characteristics and that it strengthened the feminists' sense of purpose.

"Personally, I didn't want it to end. I had a feeling that the women there were so intent and had so much energy to focus on the issues at hand that I wished we did not have to separate and go back."

Under the law authorizing the convention, Carter has 120 days from the end of the conference to make specific recommendations to Congress on the resolutions adopted.

Patrick, a member of the National Organization for Women (NOW), said abortion attracted the most controversy of issues discussed at the conference.

Delegates endorsed abortion and recommended restoration of federal and state funds to pay when the woman cannot afford the cost.

Earlier this month congressional conferees agreed to back a more limited measure that would provide Medicaid funding of abortions for rape and incest victims or women with serious health problems.

Feminists and the smaller "pro-family" group split over abortion and "sexual preference" or lesbian rights.

Although many delegates from the pro-family group charged the conference allowed them too limited opportunity to express their views, Patrick said she did not see it that way from her balcony-level vantage point.

She noted that microphones were available on first-come, first-use basis and indicated pro-family delegates seemed unfamiliar with parliamentary procedure.

"I feel that some of that (calls for points of order and privilege) were attempts to stall the conference, because the yellow cards — which were for points of order and privilege — were constantly going up."

She estimated pro-family delegates made up 10 percent of the convention's almost 2,000 delegates. Other estimates have ranged up to 20 percent.

Patrick said the ERA, which lacks three states for ratification, remains feminists' first concern.

She said the consensus of delegates and others she spoke to was that "the ERA is a basis and without it very little can be accomplished."

Patrick expressed optimism over the outcome of the ERA and other goals of the conference.

"I think the majority of women in this country may not label themselves 'feminists,' but have an orientation which is toward women's rights."

She added, "I don't think there's much that can stop the women's movement."

Two challengers, Frances P. Randau and Charles M. Segaloff, are the first two candidates to return their papers and officially file.

Mrs. Randau of 866 N. Euclid Ave. is a housewife and Segaloff of 240 W. 23rd St. is a political science and pre-law student at the University of California, Riverside.

Five other candidates have taken out papers in the last week. They are:

— Derek Brian McFann, designer-draftsman, of 353 S. Third Ave.

— Frank A. Hoover, plumber, of 1761 N. Second Ave.

Mayor Pro Tem John McCarthy of 1069 Mesa Court and Councilwoman Ina Petokas of 1104 Shannon St. have taken out nomination papers for re-election.

Councilman Hal Bailin, the third incumbent whose seat is up for election, has indicated he will not file for the March election.

The 10th candidate who has taken out papers is Edward R. Donnelly, leasing manager, of 1222 Edgewood Lane.

The deadline for taking out nomination papers is noon Jan. 3.

SHOES AND YOUR CHILDREN....
First Baby Shoes: Firm or Flexible?

by Harold Berk

There is much unnecessary controversy about whether the first walking shoes for baby should be flexible or should offer firm support.

From birth until the walking stage, the major need in foot covering is that it be loose and flexible - to restrict the foot as little as possible. Since no support is needed in these pre-standing and walking days, any shoes put on a baby should be of a soft-sole, flexible nature.

However, when weight-bearing starts, new conditions must be met.

Ideally, it would be nice to let a child go barefoot so that the foot could develop naturally. That is, it would be nice if the child's activities were to be carried out on grass or the sand at the beach.

The usual environment for the growing baby is not grass or beach. It is the floor of his home. Often it is the sidewalk. These hard surfaces put an additional strain on baby's feet, which can only be protected by proper footwear.

In selecting such proper footwear, foremost attention should be given to holding the foot in correct balance.

All too often we hear shoemen tell mothers that a flexible shoe is desirable at this stage. They say that it allows greater freedom of the toes and foot and, therefore, lets the muscles develop. The argument is logical on the surface, but closer investigation reveals pitfalls in this thinking.

The important role played by muscles cannot be minimized. However, the effectiveness of muscle action is entirely dependent on the structural framework of the foot. If a foot is structurally imbalanced, you are developing muscles that only promote greater imbalance. The rule, then, is that balance must be achieved before muscle development can proceed.

Considerable medical knowledge points to the fact that an inability to achieve proper balance of a young child's feet in the developmental stage is a major cause of pronation-inrolling ankles.

High shoes - or boots - may or may not be selected. The greatest benefit of high shoes are simply to help keep the shoes on the baby. Sometimes in the cases of the young child where the heel is not fully formed, high shoes help prevent slipping of the heel. High shoes also offer a certain amount of protection, but little support. Support comes from the sole up.

BELLS — Sadie Parton of Ontario keeps ringing her bell as Carol Sturdevant of Alta Loma, left, drops a donation in the Salvation Army Christmas kettle. Mrs. Parton says she has been "standing kettles" (ringing the bell for Salvation Army contributions) since she was 13. The Salvation Army's holiday activities, she says, "help build the Christmas spirit in the warm climate of California."

Seasonal displays are spotlighted at library

Two seasonal displays are available for public viewing at the Ontario City Library. The displays are of interest to both hobbyist and artists who will be able to view them until Dec. 31.

The display case at the entrance of the library features the collection of Mrs. Joseph Visnak titled "Miniature Nativity Scenes" which is displayed to the public as a special tribute to the Christmas - on - Euclid Committee in which she has been a long-active member. It features delicate miniature nativity scenes not unlike those displayed annually at Christmas time on Euclid Avenue. In addition there are many Biblical characters including an exceptional group done in leaded stained glass of distinct beauty. Among other things there is a Christmas and New Year greeting to the citizens of Ontario titled "They Brought Back Christmas" which is a tribute to all who made the nativity scenes possible back in 1958 through the talent of artist Rudolph Vargas.

The downstairs display case is 16 feet wide and 6 feet high and is filled with the miniature doll collection of Betty Freska which has been accumulated during the past 50 years from the days of her childhood in Ontario. The collection was inspired as a result of a gift from her uncle, Hiram Newton Savage, who was an internationally famous engineer. The gift, a tiny Egyptian mummy, is included in the collection among dolls from all over the world - including some that are more than a century old.

Mrs. Greska makes the display available to groups and organizations and gives an interesting lecture about the dolls when desired. Organization and group representatives are encouraged to see this outstanding collection with a view to taking advantage of this unusual generous opportunity.

Additional information about the displays may be obtained at the reference desk of the library or by calling 984-2758 Extension 23.

Freeway supporters plan fight in Sacramento

By PETER WONG

Supporters of the Foothill Freeway extension through Upland and Alta Loma have been urged not to concede defeat before they present their case to the state commission that will decide whether the route stays in the state's master plan.

That message was delivered by W.O. Ackermann Jr., director of transportation planning for the Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG), to a weekend meeting of local transportation planners at Upland City Hall.

The planners met to discuss a preliminary draft of the report they will present to either the California Highway Commission, or after Feb. 1, the California Transportation Commission. They hope to have it completed by the first week in January.

They hope the report will convince whatever commission considers the issue to reject the recommendation by the California Department of Transportation (Caltrans) that the freeway route be deleted from the state's master plan.

"But it's almost a legal brief for our fight in court after we've lost our case (with the state)," Ackermann, who represented the regional planning agency for six Southern California counties, said of the draft. He said that should be avoided.

He said freeway supporters ought to concentrate their efforts on two points:

— That state legislators and members of the commission that finally decides the issue must be convinced not to follow the recommendation of Caltrans headquarters.

— That funding must be secured for the freeway's construction, "and you're going to be competing with a lot of other projects."

For the freeway to have any chance, Ackermann added, the San Bernardino Associated Governments, the county's transportation planning board, and SCAG must give it priority in local and regional transportation plans. The freeway would run from La Verne through Claremont, Upland, Alta Loma and Etiwanda to the Devore Freeway, and east to San Bernardino.

Tony Malone, administrator of the Foothill Freeway Association, said the similarity of the draft to a legal brief that could be used in court was "not unintentional."

Although supporters aren't giving up their efforts to retain the freeway in other ways, Malone said, they are considering a suit against the state if all else fails.

Such a suit would force Caltrans to prepare a full report on the impacts upon the foothill communities should the freeway be deleted — and if Caltrans failed to provide alternatives.

Upland City Engineer Fred Blanchard said if the state signaled its intention to delete the freeway route without offering alternatives, "it would be a negative step."

Blanchard, who is coordinating the task force preparing the report supporters will use to argue their case, said if one or more alternatives that would relieve area traffic problems were judged feasible, he could live with deletion of the freeway route, "but not on an arbitrary basis."

If You've Had An Accident Stop, Think and Act Wisely

By Dr. Wes Helzer, D.C.

Whiplash neck injuries are among the nation's fastest growing health problems. Why?

The ever increasing number of automobiles rolling onto our congested streets and highways, the mass migration to the suburbs, and increased speed of our freeway systems, power brakes and more powerful engines all contribute to the growing frequency of the type of accident that can result in whiplash injuries.

But in one sense, a whiplash can be a blessing in disguise.

You see, a whiplash is by its very nature a problem for the modern Doctor of Chiropractic. He best understands the whiplash injury and is best equipped to cope with it. Consequently we see many new faces who visit us because of our reputation in dealing with whiplash.

In our examination and care of these people we often discover that whiplash is but one of their problems.

Don't misunderstand me, the whiplash is in itself a most serious injury that can cause arthritis, migraine headaches, extreme nervousness, or many other problems.

This, of course, means that the whiplash injury cannot be left untreated. It will only be that 'blessing in disguise' if the person who sustains the whiplash comes in for a thorough examination and is treated effectively.

If our preliminary exam reveals the presence of pressure on the nerves in the upper part of the spine and the possible displacement of vertebrae we know that a condition can respond to the proper effective treatment.

I might add, that after the first effective treatment, it is not uncommon that a whiplash sufferer will have a first restful sleep since an accident.

Every accident victim should have a thorough modern chiropractic examination. It is indeed apparent that a person who has had an accident owes it to himself and his family to find out for sure. Since every health problem has a cause it's obvious that the cause must be found before a person will get well.

Use natural products for holiday decorations

Holiday decorating doesn't have to be all gilt baubles and gaudy bangles. It can be as natural and fresh as a step through a supermarket produce department. Fresh California - Arizona citrus fruits - navel oranges and fresh lemons - and nuts are abundant during the holidays. And what could be more traditional for holiday decorating than bright, fragrant fresh citrus?

You can go as simple as a silver or glass bowl filled with oranges and lemons, interspersed with fresh greens. Or, choose one of the arrangements below. The best part of it all is that most of the ingredients can be purchased in the grocery store or picked from evergreens in your yard.

or Brazil nuts)
8 small pine cones
4 candy canes
Bamboo skewers (optional)

Place foam block or custard cup in center of wicker plate. Balance candle on top. Arrange oranges and lemons around base. Place greens around fruit and candle; add nuts, pine cones and candy canes to balance arrangement. To assist in placing nuts, drill a small hole in each shell and insert bamboo skewer. Break off skewers to desired length.

Pineapple Arrangement
You will need:
1/2 florist foam block (4" x 5" x 3") OR small food storage bowl Flat wicker basket (6" x 9" x 1 1/2")
1 medium pineapple
Bamboo skewers (optional)

4 California - Arizona oranges
4 California - Arizona lemons
40 sprigs fresh or artificial greens (combination of pine, cedar and holly or other holiday greens)
20 whole nuts (peanuts, walnuts, pecans, almonds or Brazil nuts)
10 small pine cones
Place foam block or small bowl upside down in center of basket for base. If using foam block, insert two or three bamboo skewers in bottom of pineapple to secure it to base. Center pineapple on base. Arrange oranges and lemons around pineapple. Place greens among fruit.

Add nuts and pine cones to balance arrangement. To assist in placing nuts, and pine cones, drill a small hole in the shell, and insert bamboo skewer. Break off skewers to desired length.

Healthy, safe holiday for dogs

During the hectic holidays, even the best-loved dog sometimes suffers from poor feeding and neglect by well-meaning family and friends. To make this the best and safest holiday season ever for your "best friend," follow these tips from the makers of dog food.

First, keep your dog on his regular daily diet. Just because your eating habits may change with the holidays, doesn't mean your dog's should, too. Canines suffer even more than you do from turkey, gravy, stuffing, casseroles, coffee cake and rich desserts. Resist the temptation to slip a piece of food from your plate down under the table to your wet-nosed friend. Your dog may love you for it, but table scraps can lead to serious weight and nutritional problems.

Instead, stick with good quality commercial dog food that combines carefully balanced vitamins, minerals, carbohydrates, fats and protein with good taste. A fully grown dog should be fed once a day at whatever time is convenient for you, according to experts on canine nutrition at research kennels in Barrington, Ill. These experts also recommend feeding your dog right before you eat, so that he will be less likely to beg.

When you're cleaning up after the holiday feast, be sure to keep garbage containers full of turkey bones out of your dog's sniffing reach. Fowl bones are particularly dangerous, because they are very fibrous and can splinter and catch in your dog's throat.

Holiday ornaments also pose a danger to pets. If fragile ornaments fall from the tree or mantle and break, be sure to sweep up the pieces immediately. All it takes is paw pressure in the wrong spot, and these sharp little pieces of glass can cause painful cuts in a dog's tender pads. Also, make sure that tree lights are strung high enough so that your dog won't brush up against them and be burned.

The hustle and bustle of social activity in your home often can cloud your memory to walk your dog, too. All schedules are flexible during the holiday season. This is part of the fun, but your dog cannot change his schedule. Be fair, and stay with his normal routine.

Put your dog on your holiday gift list. There are many toys and treats on the market today that are designed specifically for healthy canine enjoyment. One option is a rawhide dog bone, which is totally digestible. Dog biscuits provide nourishing pick-ups and chewing exercise that all dogs need and like. When buying snacks for your dog, read the label on the box to make sure you're getting a nutritionally balanced product.

For the dog owners on your gift list, there's a free booklet called "How to Care For, Train, and Feed Your Dog." This 32-page illustrated publication offers helpful hints on raising a dog and includes a permanent dog health record and feeding chart. To obtain a free copy, write: Dog Care Booklet, Box 6333, Chicago, Ill. 60677.

Finally, dogs need extra love and affection during the holidays when so many unfamiliar people may be coming in and out of the front door. Take some time out of your busy schedule to reassure your dog that he is not forgotten and that everyone is safe.

Perform a death-defying act.
Exercise regularly.

Techniques to fight holiday depression

'Tis the season to be jolly - or is it? It's not necessarily so, says Dr. Wayne Dyer, author of the best seller "Your Erroneous Zones," in the Dec. 13 Family Circle. According to the doctor, for many Christmas is the season for suicide, depression and pill popping. Fortunately, notes Dyer, it may only take a change of attitude to make the holiday season a cheerful, happy time. To do so he recommends these positive steps:

Do away with self-defeating holiday habits. Overeating and getting drunk can make you dislike yourself. Avoid such excesses and you'll probably feel good because you've resisted temptation.

Stop competing. It's not important to have the biggest tree, prettiest lights or even give the best party. Make a list of what you dislike about the holidays and stop doing these things. It isn't necessary to send Christmas cards or always be the one to make Christmas dinner.

Don't think of the holiday season as a long, frantic period. Take it one day at a time.

As Dyer says in the article, "It really can be the season to be jolly, if you think and behave that way."

Republican party needs citizens 'in the middle'

By Mike Montgomery
Chairman
California Republican Party

If you took a street-corner poll today and asked most people to describe a typical Republican in just one word, chances are that word would be "rich." This is a common stereotype of Republicans and of those who work within the Republican Party.

Too many people view Republicans as rich, corporate presidents who sit around country clubs all day.

Nothing could be further from the truth. The fact of the matter is that Republicans — like Democrats — come from all economic levels.

The problem is that Republicans have not done a good enough job telling the average citizen that we believe in the same principles, come from the same neighborhoods, and share the same concerns as do they.

Republicans need to reach out to the man and woman "in the middle."

Who is this man or woman "in the middle?" It is the middle-income wage-earner who pays the bulk of the property taxes, the sales taxes and all the other taxes; it's the wage-earner, with the family, who obeys the laws, supports the PTA, the United Way and the Little League.

And it is this American "in the middle" who cannot understand why a $40,000 house now cost $120,000; why the property tax bill is now over $200 per month... why it costs $1,200 a year for medical insurance for a family, and there is still a $1,500 bill for a youngster's appendectomy.

These are the people who are frustrated, and all too often, feel there is really nothing that can be done to change the system.

It is this growing anger and frustration to which Republicans must provide solutions.

Let me quote my good friend Nevada United States Senator Paul Laxalt who says about the Republican Party: "I think our constituency lies in the people paying the taxes."

"The people at the top of the scale aren't worth a damn. Right below that are millions of people — small shop owners, what little is left of private enterprise — who pay their taxes. And below that you have the beneficiaries of the system.

Our constituency lies squarely in the middle."

I believe the pendulum is swinging in the Republican direction.

Since the 1976 elections, people have gone to the polls four times in special elections to fill vacancies in the U.S. Congress. In those four congressional elections Republicans have won three. In all three — Minnesota, Washington State and Louisiana — the districts were solidly working, middle-class areas. So-called "safe Democrat" seats.

But Republican candidates carried the message to the people — to the men and women in the middle — and they welded strong, durable coalitions which carried them to victory.

These Republican candidates talked jobs, inflation and taxes — not in abstract theories, but in language people understand.

Elections to state legislatures have confirmed this trend. Twenty-nine times the people have gone to the polls across this nation to vote in special state legislative elections and 18 times — nearly two out of three — Republicans have won, replacing incumbent Democrats in 15 districts.

As we survey the political scene today, there are great opportunities and new hope for the Republican Party. But I am not suggesting Republican candidates shall win office solely because of their Democrat opponents' failure. Republicans must have something affirmative to offer.

Republicans can win the allegiance of millions of Californians who are, at last, aware that big government is incapable of solving all our problems, real or supposed, and that the so-called "new politicians" are dealing in style, rather than substance.

Republicans must raise high a banner which makes unmistakable the principles for which they stand; principles and a clear vision which addresses itself to the hopes and need of the taxpayer in the middle.

This will lay to rest the lingering myth of who is a Republican.

Follow tips to save car

The only sure way to protect your car from theft or burglary is to lock it in your garage. If the professional thief wants your auto he will get it.

The following are a few tips that just might save your vehicle:

— Install tapered lock buttons. These are available at most auto supply stores at a very small cost.

— Always lock your vehicle when leaving it for any length of time.

— Don't leave your windows open even a small crack.

— Inscribe your tape deck or CB radio with your name and address.

— Keep a list of the serial numbers on your tape deck, radio and CB unit.

— Don't keep your pink slip in your vehicle.

— Don't leave any items of value in your vehicle where they can be seen from outside the vehicle.

The cat and the researcher

You're probably not going to believe this, but a scientific foundation has awarded a $5,000 research grant to a behavioral scientist to study the television viewing habits of cats.

The reasoning behind the grant, says one of the society's representatives, is that animals, especially cats, by logic should be able to react to voice and picture patterns on the television screen, although they do not comprehend what is actually taking place.

The representative even went so far as to suggest that cats prefer to watch only good television programs and would shun the poor ones.

While the officers of the society aren't going to have many problems — all they have to do is wait patiently for the report and try to act serious about the whole thing — the poor media researcher, eager for promotion, is likely to be burdened with uncountable problems.

The scene is the home of Freddy Feline, an average ordinary cat. A couple of tables, each with a half-empty box of catnip, surround our subject. In one corner is a sandbox. Hidden behind the sandbox is a small television set. The researcher timidly approaches the cat.

"Uh, Cat. Excuse me, Cat."

"Who are you?" And why are you in my sandbox?"

"Oops. Sorry. Ahem, well, I'm your average ordinary university media behavioral research scientist, and I've come to interview you about what television programs you watch."

"Say, fella, you feeling all right? Humidity not too high, is it?"

"No, honest now, Cat. I've really come to find out what you like on TV... Do you like re-runs of 'Flipper'? That's all about a giant fish."

"Mammal," corrected the cat.

"O.K., then, mammal. Well, how about 'Columbo' or 'Cannon' or even 'The Rockford Files'? They're all good adventure shows."

"Ah, come now," moaned the cat, "you've got to be kidding."

"It's comedy you like!" beamed the professor.

"How about 'All in the Family' or 'Happy Days'?" There was no response. But the professor was persistent. "Mary Tyler Moore?" "M*A*S*H?" "The Dumplings?"

The cat yawned.

"I know!" shouted the professor. "You're an educated cat. You watch '60 Minutes,' 'First Tuesday' and 'The ABC News.'"

"You're loony," replied the cat. "In fact, none of us cats watch television."

"You don't?" came the startled reply of the media researcher. "Then what's that TV doing behind the sandbox?"

"Oh that," grinned the cat, "Why I like to sharpen by claws and that's the only good piece of mahogany that I can find that's of any value. I've tried everything else there is, but the TV legs are the best posts I've ever found for scratching my claws on."

"I wonder what Skinner would have done now," mumbled the professor, whose visions of promotion were slowly fading. He tried again. "But you've just got to watch television. It's the American way! How about re-runs of 'The Beverly Hillbillies' or 'I Dream of Jeanie?' 'My Mother the Cat'?"

"Naw, man," yawned the cat, "Like I jus' told ya, I don't watch television. I don't even like television."

"Cartoons!" cried out the professor. "You watch Felix the Cat, Krazy Kat, and Fritz the Cat! Right?"

"Wrong," persisted the professor. "You watch re-runs of 'Lassie.' Don't you even scout the opposition?"

"Hey, man," said the cat,

"Like I've been trying to tell you, I don't watch television. Why are you so interested in me watching television? It's so violent, and I hate violence. In fact, I'm not even sure I'm much fond of media behavioral research scientists right now."

By now, the researcher was in tears. "Look, Cat," he pleaded, "I've got this really neat grant — $5,000 from the society — and it's to find out what cats watch on television. And besides, I can get a publication credit and—"

The cat perked up his ears. "You mean that some nuts gave you 5000 bucks to interview cats to find out what we watch on the scratching post?" And then, the cat began to think. "Let's see, now. He gets $5,000 to interview cats. And, after all, I am the most important part of the study." And a gleam came into the cat's bright green eyes.

"Look, Prof, I don't really watch television. None of us cats do. But, I'll tell you what I'll do for you. If I told you what I didn't watch, you could deduce the rest. Besides, who would know?"

"Will you help me figure out the Friedman Two-Way Analysis of Variants?" sobbed the happy professor.

"Heck," replied the Cat. "I'll even kidnap Friedman for you and make him figure it out, if that'll help."

The media researcher was once again happy. His career wasn't ruined. There would be a publication credit. There would be a world-wide fame. There would be a promotion.

In an exclusive section of some American city, there walks a very, very happy professor... and a cat with a $5,000 bankroll.

Airport gives travel tips

All commercial airports in the Southland are gearing for the heavy influx of holiday travelers and Ontario International Airport is among them.

John Dickinson, airport manager, offers the following tips to air travelers who use OIA:

— Before leaving home, verify date, time, airline, flight number and airport. Occasionally people booked at one airport will go to another because it is closer and they assume the flight is scheduled from there.

— Allow at least one-half hour extra time when traveling to the airport as it may take longer to locate a parking spot or check in.

— Put all Christmas gifts into luggage is possible. For items that are hand carried, be sure they are small enough to fit under the seat. Otherwise the airline will require it to be treated as baggage, and tag it and ship it as luggage.

— All baggage should have identifying tags (a federal requirement) put on them before leaving home to save time at the airport.

Dickinson also added that passengers using Los Angeles International Airport can write for a brochure entitled "All About LAX" which provides an airport layout, location of inexpensive off-airport parking, parking rates and other tips.

The address is: All About LAX, One World Way, Los Angeles, CA 90009.

No-bake Granola Bars

Create a holiday house

The holiday spirit inspires many families to make homemade decorations.

Candle-making, pinecone wreaths and gingerbread houses are traditional handicrafts in many homes.

This 1977 season, add to the fun of family decorating by building a new tradition — a Granola Bar House.

This newfangled version of an old tradition is constructed of granola bars which, unlike gingerbread, do not need baking.

They are held together with a special decorators' cement and quaintly trimmed with a variety of colorful candies.

The Granola Bar House takes up to two days to build and dry. The walls and roof are assembled on the first day and then put all together at least 12 hours later.

This house is a sturdy and lasting decoration that can be enjoyed for the rest of the season. It's a fun project the entire family can work on together in the holiday spirit.

GRANOLA BAR HOUSE
Decorators' Cement (below)

4 granola bars (cinnamon or honey 'n' oats)

About 50 miniature marshmallows

1 large marshmallow

6 pieces red rope twist

licorice

Shredded coconut

Green food color

1 sugar ice-cream cone

Red cinnamon candies

Red and green gumdrops

Decorators' Cement: Mix

seven and one-half cups

powdered sugar and four egg whites in three-quart

bowl; cover with damp paper towel. Cover any remaining cement tightly with damp paper towel and plastic wrap; refrigerate.

To Make Front Section:

Cut three-fourths inch from ends of four granola bars.

Place bars on wire rack,

leaving one-eighth-inch space between each bar. To attach each bar, roll enough

decorators' cement

between hands until width of a pencil. Place roll of cement in space between bars; press firmly together.

To Make Back Section:

Place six uncut granola

bars on wire rack, leaving

one-eighth-inch space

between each bar. Place

roll of cement in space

between bars; press firmly

together.

To Make Two Side

Sections: For each section, cut one inch from ends of two granola bars. Reserve the one-inch pieces. Place

bars on wire rack, leaving

one-eighth-inch space

between each bar. Place

roll of cement in space

between bars; press firmly

together.

To Complete House:

Spread reserved one-inch

between bars; press firmly together.

To Make Two Roof

Sections: For each section,

cut three granola bars

crosswise into halves.

Place six uncut bars and three half-bars on wire

rack, leaving one-eighth-inch space between each bar. Place roll of cement in space between bars; press

firmly together.

Dry all sections on wire

rack at least 12 hours.

To Attach Front, Back

and Sides: Use surface at least 22x15.5 inches to support house. Place rolls of cement on all side edges of the four sections. Attach front and back sections to the side section; press firmly until set. Let harden at least 12 hours.

To Attach Roof: Draw

two triangles on lightweight cardboard as shown; cut out. Spread cement on one side of each triangle; attach miniature marshmallows,

leaving one-half-inch edge along bottom of each. Attach triangles to front and back sections from inside of house;

press firmly until set. Place rolls of cement on long edges of each roof section. Rest sections against each other and against side sections;

press firmly until set.

To Complete House:

Spread reserved one-inch

sections with cement; attach to sides of windows for shutters. Spread end of large marshmallow with cement; attach to center of roof for chimney.

Cut one-half inch from end of one granola bar. Place roll of cement on edge of bar. Attach to door frame; press firmly together. Use one-half miniature marshmallow for doorknob.

Spread cement on licorice; outline miniature marshmallows.

To Decorate Yard: For snow, sprinkle shredded coconut around outside of house. For tree, tint about one-fourth-cup cement with green food color; decorate sugar cone in spiral design. Attach cinnamon candies to cement. Place sugar cone tip side up on coconut at side of house. For landscape, place red and green gumdrops on coconut in front of house.

Win prize for decorations

Woman's Day magazine in its Deck-the-Hall Contest, is offering more than 100 prizes for the winning Christmas decorations. Here's all you have to do:

This Christmas take a color snapshot of your most original, most attractive ornament or display and send it to Woman's Day, along with a brief explanation of what makes it special (easy, ingenious, inexpensive, quick, etc.). You can enter as many designs as you like, but be sure you put your name and address on the back of each color snapshot.

Wearing fancy hats and masks on New Year's Eve stems from an old belief that if you're disguised, the demons won't be able to recognize you. And traditionally, holiday bells and noisemakers were sounded to warn the devil of the loss of his powers.

NATIVITY SCENE — Looking at one of the many miniature nativity scenes she has loaned for display at the Ontario City Library is Alta Visnak, a charter member of the Christmas on Euclid Avenue Committee. The committee was responsible for the 12 tableaux, depicting the life of Christ, which line Euclid Avenue parkway. Ontario, during the Christmas season. Since the committee was formed in 1958, Mrs. Visnak has maintained a continuing interest in the tableaux, and due to this, friends and family members over the years have given her miniature nativity scenes.

Christmas callers should phone early

General Telephone of California reminds its customers to make long distance holiday telephone calls to friends and relatives prior to Dec. 25, if possible, in order to get the quickest connection.

"Last year, more than 1.3 million calls were placed through our equipment in Southern and Central California on Christmas Day," said J. Stanley Botelho, vice president-service for General. The company predicts an approximate 13 percent increase in Christmas Day calling for 1977, based on call volume increases for the year.

For the most economical long distance telephoning — at Christmas or any other time — General suggests that customers dial the call themselves and take advantage of reduced evening rates from 5 to 11 p.m., even lower night calling rates from 11 p.m. to 8 a.m. and low Saturday, Sunday and holiday rates.

YULE HOUSE — You can build a new tradition of holiday cheers in this year of 1977 with a Granola Bar House. Unlike gingerbread, this decorative Christmas house requires no baking. It's held together with baker's cement and trimmed with colorful candies. It takes about two days to build and dry.

Pine for Christmas fragrance

The spirit of the Christmas season with its twinkling lights, shopping, and busy holiday preparations lasts only a short time, but the atmosphere of the festive Yule tree has been captured for year 'round enjoyment.

"The fresh aroma of the season, now available in pine spray, is one way to keep the feeling of Christmas in the house long before and after Dec. 25," says Leslie Wood, consumer information specialist.

The product is a fresh, natural fragrance that was developed in response to the scent's popularity with consumers.

"Pine has had an important place in the American tradition at times other than Christmas, too," Wood emphasizes. "Pines along the entire Atlantic coast greeted Vikings, pilgrims, colonists and immigrants. They stretched from Florida to Maine, the Pine Tree State, and extended well beyond the U.S. northern borders. The wood itself was among the most popular building materials and still is an essential part of most home construction. But it has been the aroma of pine that has won it the greatest acclaim inside the house."

CHRISTMAS STORY — Scenes along Euclid Avenue in Ontario tell the familiar Christmas story of the Jewish family traveling to Bethlehem for a census. The carpenter (at left) searches for lodging for his pregnant wife. The only place left in the crowded town is a stable (above) where Mary gives birth to a baby, greeted by angels and shepherds as the promised messiah. Following the census the family returns home to the town of Nazareth where Mary (below) cares for her son and raises him in the Jewish faith.

Southland marks holiday

Lights, laughter, gifts, music, and family are highlights of Christmas for many in Southern California. Choosing a Christmas tree, getting the decorations out of storage, recognizing favorite decorations as they're put on the tree, and adding tinsel are familiar parts of the Christmas season.

Others string popcorn and cranberries to garland their trees, make cookie or clay ornaments, and use bright red bows to decorate the tree.

Families enjoy the friendly secrecy of gift buying and wrapping the packages — and then, of course, unwrapping them.

Many try to recapture the feeling of an old-time Christmas by knitting sweaters, building wooden toys, and baking cookies and candy for personalized gifts.

The weeks before Christmas are lightened by Christmas music on radio, neighborhood decorations, and community programs. Many take an evening drive to see local communities alight with sparkling decorations such as the lighted Christmas trees which glow along Upland's Euclid Avenue. Others visit the special Christmas display along Euclid Avenue in Ontario or the mosaics of Jesus' life at Forest Lawn, Covina Hills.

Christmas parades at Disneyland and La Posadas at Olvera Street draw many people each year to take part in the holiday spirit.

For many people Christmas is a time for extra work to ensure that others throughout the world have a merry Christmas and a happier new year.

Volunteers collect and repair toys for needy children, collect food for a needy family's dinner or for emergency needs throughout the year, collect money to help those who have temporary problems.

Others choose presents for residents of hospitals and homes, sing Christmas carols to shut-ins, aid children, in gift shopping for their families, and send gift bags to military personnel overseas.

For many highlight of the Christmas season is a Christmas Eve candlelight service or a Christmas Day family service. Choirs particularly enjoy the services which conclude weeks of preparation.

For others the highlight of the Christmas services may be a Christmas tableau with real animals, angels, magi, shepherds, and a baby, peacefully sleeping or crying loudly.

Everyone at Christmas shares at least one thing — the wish that the Christmas spirit of love and giving could last more than the few short weeks of December and make a lasting impact on the world.

For many the Christmas spirit will translate into a New Year's resolution to continue the meaning of Christmas — particularly the angels' message: Peace on Earth and Good Will to All.

TRADITIONAL SCENES — The baby Jesus (at left) is presented in the temple in Jerusalem and is visited by three magi (right), who find the child by following a bright star to Bethlehem. Their visit alerts the authorities who begin a search for the baby, and the holy family flees to Egypt until it is safe to return. Other scenes in the Euclid Avenue display include Jesus in his parents' home, Jesus talking with the elders in the temple, and Jesus as an adult greeting little children.

Select books for children's gifts

"The right book for the right child at the right time" is an old saying which still has validity, according to Winifred Ragsdale of the George G. Stone Center for Children's Books at Claremont Graduate School.

The center's director, Ms. Ragsdale has directed the publication of a catalogue, "Children's Books for Holiday Giving." The booklet is sent free to all center members and to others upon request. Anyone interested may write to the George G. Stone Center for Children's Books, Claremont Graduate School, Claremont, CA 91711.

The booklet catalogue has categories such as "Awakening to a Heritage," "First Adventures in Independent Reading," "For Truly Independent Readers," "Almost Adult," "Timeless Books for Holidays," "The Family Reads Aloud" and "The Family Reference Shelf."

Even though the booklet is published especially for holiday book giving, the titles are timeless and could be gifts for birthdays, special occasions or just for the sake of sharing.

In the first section, there are such delightful titles as "Why Mosquitoes Buzz in People's Ears" by Aardema and described as an African folktale accompanied by striking full-color illustrations. There also is "Frog and Toad Are Friends" by Lobel, which follows more adventures of that lovable pair. Frog and Toad. Or there is "Fish for Supper" by Goode, which tells of a day in the life of grandmother, who has a penchant for fishing.

The second category involving independent reading has such books as, "Eleanor Roosevelt," a glowing portrait of the 32nd President's wife by Goodsell, and "Dwarf Long-Nose" by Hauff, a German fairy tale about a bewitched shoemaker's son. For the "truly independent readers," there are books such as "The Trouble With Jenn's Ear" by Butterworth, a hilarious nonsense story about a little girl with a telepathic ear, or "The Daybreakers" by Curry, which tells of three children who move unexpectedly into a mysterious world of fantasy. Another of the 16 selections is "A Taste of Blackberries" by Smith, a sensitive portrayal of a boy's reaction to the death of a close friend.

The "Almost Adult" group has "My Brother Sam Is Dead" by Collier, an exciting tale of adventure and tragedy during the Revolutionary War, and "The Golden Goblet" by McBraw, a tale of a young boy in ancient Egypt who finally realizes his dearest dream.

Books for the holidays include "Turkeys, Pilgrims and Indian Corn" by Barta, which tells the origins and symbols of Thanksgiving. Then there is "See My Lovely Poison Ivy" by Moore, a group of humorous Halloween verses about witches, ghosts 'n things, and "A Northern Nativity" by Kurelek in which superb paintings visualize a Canadian boy's Christmas dreams. The group also includes a story of the Chinese New Year, Christmas crafts and "The Book on Chanukah" by Scharfstein, which tells the story of the Jewish Feast of Lights and gives ideas for holiday foods and children's activities.

For families which like to read aloud, there are 15 suggestions to select from including "The Fire Plume" by Bierhorst, which tells the legends of American Indians and has striking illustrations and "Puck of Pook's Hill" by Kipling, stories which have delighted children for over 70 years.

Suggestions for the "Family Reference Shelf" includes "American Folktales and Songs" by Chase, an Appalachian collection of American folklore, and "El Toro Pinto" by Rockwell, a book of 30 songs in Spanish along with bright, cheerful illustrations.

The George G. Stone Center for Children's Books is a specialized collection, about 15 years old, named in honor of a man who believed in the power of books to enrich children's lives. It serves primarily as a model collection for students, faculty, teachers and administrators, but also for anyone wishing to become a member.

Ms. Ragsdale said there are more than 11,000 volumes in the center which cover all areas of children's literature from pre-school age to junior high, and from technology to fantasy.

Books, books, books. Nothing can replace books — they are friends, sources of knowledge, sources of comfort and sources of joy.

Recycle cards into yule gifts

Greeting cards and gift wrap scraps can be recycled into holiday decorations and small personal gifts, says Marie Smith, a holiday display designer.

DECORATIVE SOAPS add a festive touch to the bath or make thoughtful gifts. Two or three soap bars, scraps of gift wrap and a small amount of paraffin are the only items needed.

Select a soap bar with a smooth surface, dampen one side, cut the gift wrap design exactly as you want it to appear and apply it right side up. The damp soap will cause the design to stick. Dip the designed surface, not the entire bar, in a small pan of melted paraffin to seal the design.

The soap now is ready to be used from the bottom side.

If the soap is to be a gift, wrap it in the same gift wrap design that appears on the bar to give the package a tailored look.

PLACE MATS are easily assembled from Christmas cards, gift wrap scraps, heavy paper or cardboard and clear sheets of adhesive paper.

Cut designs from old Christmas cards and glue them to a piece of paper or cardboard which measures approximately 16 by 24 inches.

Once the design is finished, carefully place the clear adhesive sheet over the surface, leaving a minimum of 1/8-inch overlap on all sides. Repeat the process on back

Fire departments offer Christmas safety hints

Local firemen would like to give the gift of safety to every resident of the West End during this holiday season — a gift which will last throughout the next year.

Trees, parties, lights, smoking, drinking, being at home and away from home are holiday traditions.

Fire chiefs from all West End fire departments have compiled several suggestions for getting through the holidays free of emergencies or tragedy.

Most West Enders are preparing to purchase Christmas trees to decorate their homes for the holidays. Several steps should be taken to insure that the tree will stay fresh throughout the holidays.

Only State Fire Marshal approved chemical coatings or sprays should be used to make trees flame resistant. The freshness of the tree at the time of purchase will determine the life of the tree in the house. Color and scent should be checked carefully before the tree is purchased.

Needles should not fall readily from the tree. The trunk of a fresh tree should be sticky with sap. Anyone purchasing a tree should cut approximately two inches off of the trunk and put the tree in a water-holding stand, firemen said. The stand should be kept filled with fresh water throughout the holidays.

Trees should be kept away from fireplaces, radiators or other heat sources.

The tree should not interfere with any doorways or exits from the home. In case of an emergency, the tree could be a stumbling block that could take a life.

Tree lights used on trees should be checked thoroughly before using. They should also be checked periodically during the holiday season.

Warm lights too close to dry needles or artificial trees which are not flame retardant can lead to disaster, the firemen noted.

When decorating outside, only lights and extension cords approved for outdoor use should be used.

Defective lights, exposed wires, loose plugs and overloaded circuits can cause fires.

Parties are traditional and most often fun during the Christmas season, but hosts should be always aware of fire hazards after any party.

Ashtays should be checked for lit cigarettes. Searches should be made behind sofas, under pillows and in trash cans. A match or cigarette carelessly tossed into a waste basket filled with gift wrapping can cause a holocaust, firemen emphasized.

Fireplaces are pretty, but they are not incinerators, firemen warned. Christmas wrappings should not be burned in the fireplace, but disposed of properly.

The Christmas and New Year season is a time when many people find themselves staying home to host parties or leaving home to attend parties.

Firemen would like every resident to take the time to make sure police, fire and other emergency telephone numbers are located on or near each telephone in every West End home.

Earn reputation as gift wrapper

If you're one of those frustrated Santa's helpers who always gets stuck with wrapping oddly shaped gifts — bottles, footballs, homemade treats — take heart. This is your year to earn a reputation as a master package - wrapper, provided you follow the gift - wrapping techniques of gift stylist Mary Ann Odom.

For bottles, baseball bats, umbrellas, footballs and the like, select a wrapping paper with designs on both sides, Miss Odom says. Roll the item in the paper, tape the open side and tie one or both ends with yarn. Larger items such as basketballs may require two lengths of paper laid out in an "X". Gather and tie the ends. Since the paper has a design on each side, no unsightly white surfaces appear.

For very large gifts, choose plastic Christmas gift bags that measure at least 36 by 44 inches. Many come with coordinated yarn ties and gift tags.

Holiday prescriptions add to fun

NEW YORK, N.Y. — True, there's no place like home for the holidays. But, evenings out also are on most of our holiday agendas.

To make those nights out carefree, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company offers these suggestions:

Don't take your worries with you. Make sure the children are left in the care of a competent babysitter. The sitter you choose should be someone who has been recommended by other parents in your neighborhood or who has had experience caring for younger brothers and sisters.

Leave full instructions — baby sitters should know exactly what is expected of them.

Be certain you leave not only a phone number where you can be reached but also the number of your family doctor in case an emergency should arise. Emphasize to the sitter that in case of smoke or fire the children should be taken from the house immediately — before they're dressed, before the fire department is called, before you are contacted — before a fire results in a fatality.

Insist that no one be admitted to the house unless you have approved their visit. And be firm in your instructions that the children not be left alone in the house — even for a minute.

Don't drink and drive. You've heard this one before, but it's a seldom-heeded refrain. Statistics show that deaths from drunken driving rise with each passing year. The inebriated "life of the party" is in reality a potential killer.

If you're going to a party with friends, it's a good idea for at least one of you not to drink at all.

But, if you must drink, take no more than one alcoholic drink per hour. It takes one full hour for two-thirds of an ounce of alcohol to burn out of your system.

Eat a good dinner before partying — and do yourself a favor by nibbling on the hors d'oeuvres while you drink.

The Contractor shall comply with Section 1777.5 of the Labor Code of the State of California.

OWNER'S RIGHTS RESERVED: The City Council of the City of Montclair reserves the right to reject any and all bids, to waive any informality in a bid and to make awards as the interest of the City may require. This notice is given by order of the Council of the City of Montclair, California.

Fresh trees arrive from northwest area

Christmas trees cut within the last 72 hours are arriving daily in supermarkets now. The recent rains in the Northwest enabled growers to keep trees in the ground up to the last minute.

Four major varieties will be seen in the Southern California market. The traditional tree, Douglas variety, is slowly dying out. Their home life is very short, they grow wild and most of the industry utilizes plantations, and they are not as pretty as the plantation varieties. The "wild" Douglas will be the lowest priced tree and few will be available. The Plantation Douglas is a very full tree with thin needles. Its life expectancy, with proper care may reach two weeks or longer. The Nobel Fir, on many lots will be your most expensive tree. The branches are spaced evening and shaped during the growing period. The needles are very thick therefore holding more water and maintaining their freshness longer than other varieties.

The Scotch Pine is a long needle variety that emits a subtle odor as it ages. Consumers should also be aware that as the tree dries out the needles become very stiff and somewhat sharp.

Finger foods

The winter holiday season heralds the return to traditional cocktail parties and informal gatherings around a roaring fire. As every hostess knows, quick and easy, yet unusual finger foods are what it takes to help make any party "click." One important must for any hors d'oeuvre is that it takes care of itself on your buffet table. No melting, wilting, fading or drying allowed!

Hawaiian papaya, that luscious import from our 50th state, is a natural for any party situation. Unlike many fruits, fresh papaya won't discolor when cut, so it can be cubed or wedged and served along with sliced cold cuts or chunks of cheese with nary a care. Be sure to choose papayas that are partially golden yellow in color — an indication of ripeness. A yellow green papaya will ripen in a few days if left at room temperature, but be sure to refrigerate the papaya once it's ripe.

Poinsettia pointers given

Thanks to vigorous plant breeding efforts, Poinsettias are well adapted to household conditions and many hold their color and good looks well into late winter and even until Easter in some cases.

The average indoor temperature of 65-70 degrees is very suitable for Poinsettias while they are kept indoors during the holidays. Poinsettias look their best with plenty of sunlight and their soil should be kept moist.

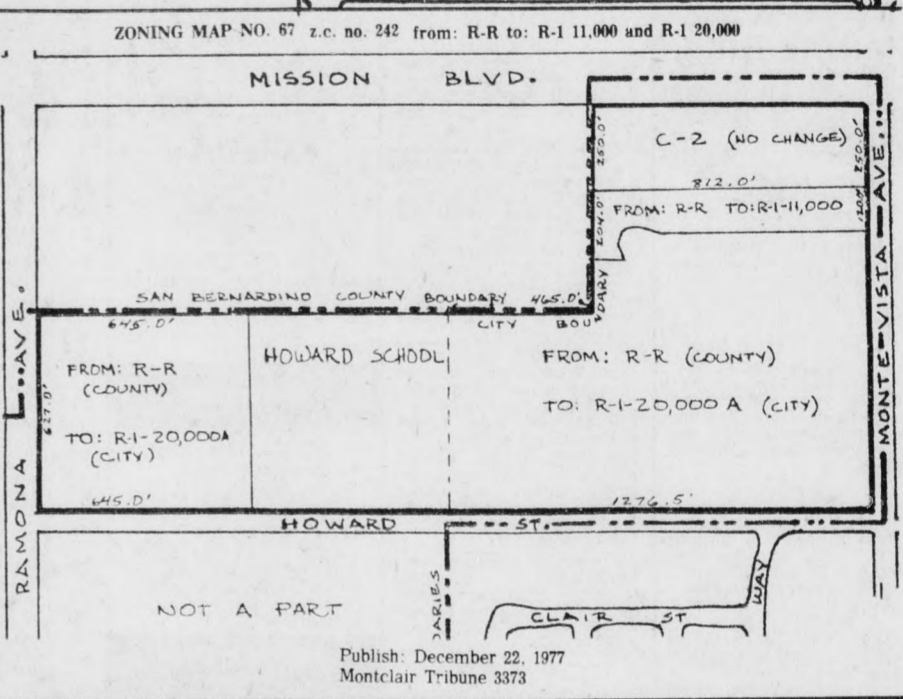

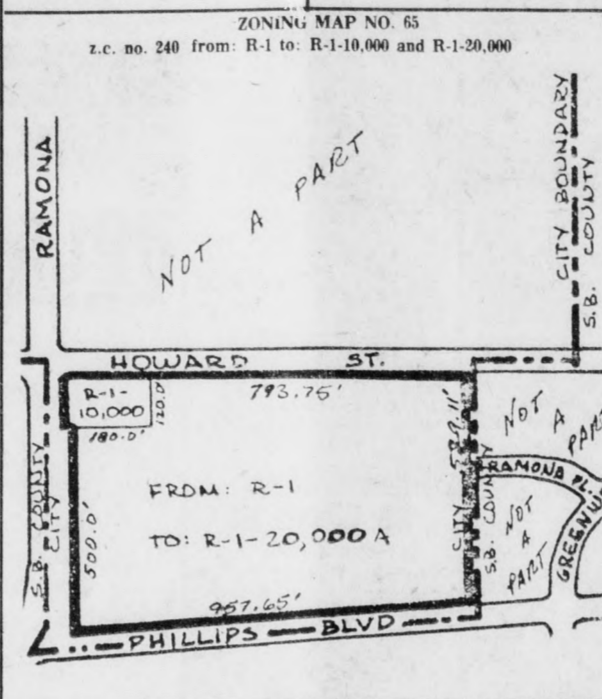

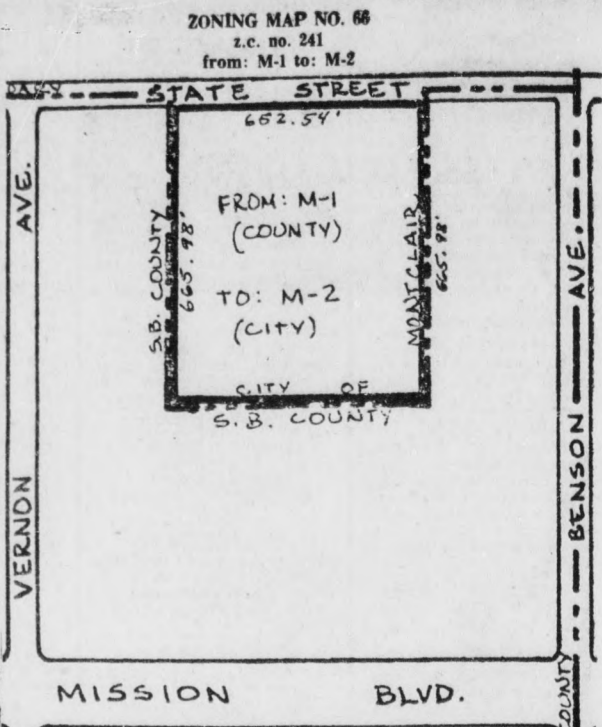

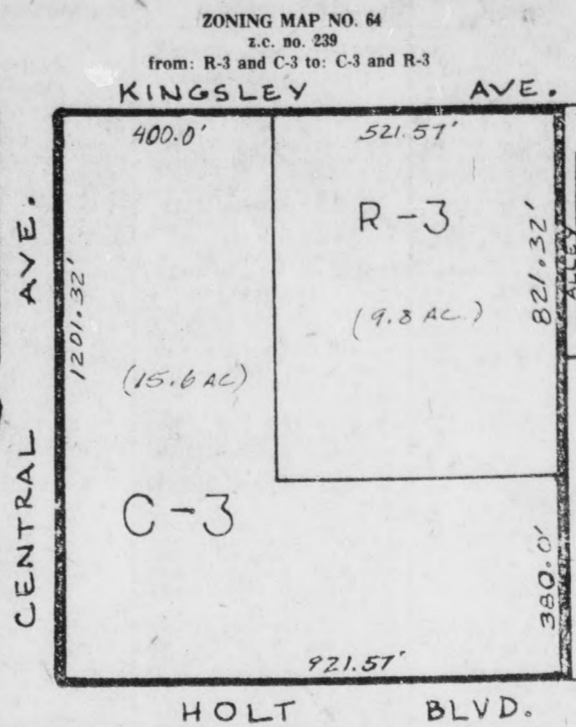

As soon as Poinsettias have finished blooming, the tops should be cut off to three or four leaf buds. This channels all nourishment into roots and the remainder of the stems insuring great success in the following year.
